

Today's Headlines: Feds Approve City's Sandy Recovery Plan

Posted on May 10, Posted by David Howard King Category The Eye-Opener

The City's plan for spending federal disaster recovery aid has been approved by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The first $1.7 billion in federal funding will be released this summer. Most of the funds, $648 million, will go to repairing homes and strengthening them against future flooding. There is also funding for low income rentals subsidies, city infrastructure and loans for businesses. Mayor Michael Bloomberg and HUD secretary Shaun Donovan are scheduled to announce the plan's approval today at City Hall. Those looking for grants will be able to apply by calling the city's 311 help line or by going to nyc.gov

Other Stories We're Following

Peralta Won't Comment on Legal Fees (Crain's)

State Senator Huntley Sentenced to a Year For Corruption (NY Times)

In Wake of Scandals, Cuomo Defends His Ethics Agency (Capital Tonight)

City Council Offers Treasure Trove of Archives (City Room)

Proposals Seek to Curb Bias By Co-Op Boards (NY Times)

Bike Share to Start May 27 (NY 1)

Rally For SUNY Downstate Medical Center (NY 1)

Liu Campaign In Tight Spot On Matching Funds (Wall Street Journal)

Carrion Opposes Voting Rights For Non-Citizens (Capital)

Cuomo Says No NYC Casino For 5 Years (Crain's)

Tags: Tagged in: Adolfo Carrion Gov. Andrew Cuomo John Liu Jose Peralta

Mayor Michael Bloomberg

Shaun Donovan

Shirley Huntley